Church Torn by Scandal Ousts An Elder; Keeps Pastor

Another chapter in the trouble in the First Christian church, caused by Foster, was about to end. On Sunday, Rev. Leland L. Marion, was written to by the members of the church present at the morning service, sustaining the action of the board in asking Mr. Marion to remain another year as pastor and virtually "fired" Frank E. Sadler, as an elder, one of the church leaders since its establishment.

Mr. Sadler is charged by Mr. Marion with attempting to buy the church which he designed. Mr. Sadler is a trustee, financial secretary and clerk, for several years chairman of the board, until a week ago a Bible school teacher and until Sunday an elder. To the Gazette, Monday, he defined his stand as being on the side of right and justice and characterized his ousting as elder as "steal roller tactics."

Church Supports Marion.

After the service Mr. Marion announced he would not be at a business meeting and asked all who were not members and who were not interested to retire. Mr. Marion then retired and Elmer Oscar Brown, chairman of the official church board, stating that there was "unpleasant" business to perform, said, "Let us be sure we are expressing our sentiments and upholding righteousness." By rising vote the action of the board in asking Mr. Marion to remain another year as pastor was passed.

Eighty-four members voted when those opposed to Mr. Marion's staying were asked to vote. Mr. Brown then announced that a vote by ballot would be taken on the action of the board in requesting Mr. Marion to resign as elder. A total of 112 votes were cast. 37 for, Sadler, 65 against and 6 blanks.

"I hope now we may live in harmony," said Mr. Brown. "I believe the best way to settle our differences."

Mardon Thinks Congregation.

"As your brother in Christ I thank you for retaining me for another year—not that I have lost any sleep over it," said Mr. Marion. "It is almost impossible to agree with everybody on everything and I don't pretend to please everybody. I may say or do some things that are not just right and contrary to this book. If

Coal Cars Sent Back to Mines; State Objects

[By Associated Press.]

Madison—Cars needed by dockless companies for carrying coal to mines were still not being refused by the C. M. and St. P. railway on the ground that orders from the Interstate Commerce commission require them to return empty cars to the mines, the state fuel committee learned Monday.

L. E. Gettle, railroad commissioner, at once telegraphed to the Interstate Commerce commission that "there is no use going back to law and saying that unless cars can be secured for local distribution."

In a message to the superintendent of railroad officials he said it is absolutely necessary for Wisconsin to use cars for local shipments.

No reply has been received from either the Interstate Commerce commission or the railroads with which it is connected, increasing the demand for cars to carry fuel to interior cities has grown. It is expected by Mr. Gettle that orders will be issued by the federal commission making available the cars needed by Wisconsin.

ATTORNEYS ARGUE U. S. INJUNCTION IN FEDERAL COURT

JUDGE WILKERSON HEARS PLEAS FOR PERMANENT ACTION

DISMISSAL ASKED

No Legal Provision for Enforcing Board's Orders, Says Jewel's Attorney.

BULLETIN.

Chicago—Federal Judge J. H. Wilkerson Monday denied the motion of attorneys for the rail strike leaders that the government's bill for a temporary injunction be dismissed.

"I am not prepared to decide at this time that the bill fails to set up any grounds for relief," the court said.

[By Associated Press.]

Chicago—Arguments in the government's motion to make permanent the temporary injunction against the rail strikers opened at 10:35 a. m. before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Blackburn, attorney, for the solicitor general, opened for the government with the formal reading of the list of defendants on whom personal service had been obtained.

Donald R. Richberg, attorney for B. M. Jewell, and John Scott, secretary-treasurer of the railway employees' department, American Federation of Labor, called attention to the motion he filed Saturday, asking dismissal of the injunction so far as it relates to his predecessor over the government's motion.

Attorneys Confer

Attorney General Daugherty, Oliver Pagan, government's chief legal expert, District Attorney Clark and attorney general's assistants in the case were reported in conference in the district attorney's office while the court's docket was learned Monday.

Mr. Richberg declared in his opening statement that the acts involved in the cutting and conducting of the strike were entirely lawful. The restraining order, he said, was one the court had no power to issue because, he maintained, it is unconstitutional and violates the Clayton act. If the bill is stripped of its conspiracy allegations, he continued, all that is left is a bill to enjoin criminal acts by unknown persons, who may or may not be members of the strikers' organization.

Based on Legal Duty

The bill, Mr. Richberg said, is based on an assertion that the defendant is in a legal duty to obey the decisions of the United States railroad labor board.

There is nothing in the transportation act creating the labor board providing any method for enforcing its decisions except by public opinion, he said.

He quoted Congressman Esch, one of the authors of the act, as saying in congress that "there is nothing in the anti-strike nature of the law." In the message of President Harding to congress on the present rail strike the attorney general read sections in which the president brought out the same absence of mandatory provisions.

EUROPE ON EDGE AS TURK VICTORY DEVELOPS CRISIS

UNITED ALLIED POLICY MUST BE ADOPTED AT ONCE.

RUSS PACT SEEN

Soviet Eager for Alliance with Nationalists; India Jubilant at Outcome.

[By Associated Press.]

London—Sweeping the Greek forces from Asia Minor in a whirlwind campaign lasting only two weeks, the Turkish nationalists under Mustapha Kemal Pasha, have won a great military victory and at the same time at least partially nullified the losses to their nation through the world war.

This is creating a quandary full of the gravest possibilities on the immediate adoption of a united policy by Great Britain, France and Italy—and such a policy is far from existent, according to the view generally held here.

Encourage Turk Charge

France and Italy are accused in some quarters of having not only encouraged the Kemalists but of having supplied them with arms and munitions, although it is reported now in the same circles that they are becoming alarmed at the unexpected extent of the Turkish successes.

Italy's concern is said to have been manifested in a fresh expression desire for a preliminary conference of the allies at Venice to consider the situation, but this finds no favor in London.

Soviet Russia's alleged desire to establish a Bolshevik-Kemalist alliance aimed at control of Constantinople and the straits of Dardanelles brings renewed demand that the neutrality of these be maintained.

India Is Gleeful

Another cause of uneasiness here is the effect the Kemalists' victory is having in India, where prayers for their success have been said daily in the Mosques and every advance has been hailed with great glee by the Mohammedans. The Daily Telegraph, Calcutta report says, there were demonstrations, illuminations and fire works there Saturday night, when news of Smyrna's fall became known.

REYDAL PREACHES AT METHODIST CHURCH

A forceful sermon on "The Opening of Books" was preached by Rev. T. J. Reydal, formerly of Evansville. Sunday morning in the Cargill Methodist church here. With its text, "And another book was opened and that book was life," he showed that nature is filled with books on which God had written numberless records of sky, earth and other phenomena and that these were being continued.

There are also books of history, science, philosophy and biography which give the records of the race and individuals.

One's own life, he pointed out, is a book in which is set down memory of events and the growth of character, and by these would one be judged at the last day.

He emphasized the promise that all who believe and trust in Christ will find their name written in the book of life, as being most comforting.

Examples of great souls during their periods of leadership, gave hope to his audience.

The Junior choir, directed by Miss Nan Sorenson, and a sextet of young women, sang.

VARIETY REIGNS IN SHOPS FOR MEN

Everything Shown from "Jazz" Models to Ultra-Conervative in Clothes

The coming fall season, as far as men's fashions are concerned, will be of great variety. Old styles, popular for several seasons back, will continue, while some radical changes will be seen in many suits.

Tweeds, the most popular suiting material for the past three years for all ages, promise to be worn almost as much as ever this fall and winter. Tailors and tailoring concerns are offering many new combinations in tweeds, some plain gray, others with a little color in them.

Men, young and young men, however, prefer a dark suit for everyday and evening wear. A dark blue or black suit, either plain or with a stripe of some kind, will be perfectly proper and not out-of-style. Pen-stripe suits will be seen less than previously.

As for the model of the suit, a variety equal to that in materials will be noted. Tweeds look best in the sack models with plain or belt-edged coats, four pockets, buttoning for men. Now "jazz" models are becoming shown a great deal by local clothiers. They bark back to the days when the form-fitting suits were in style, and will probably be worn more by those seeking the latest in clothes more than those of a more conservative mind for suits. They have four buttons, close together, far up on the front of the suit, and are made in the dark brown and blue Green is still "in" in any suit.

Bell-Bottoms Going Out

The form of trousers will be about the same, with more conservative lines. Neither the wide bell-bottoms, nor the wide, clumsy legs that were worn with the tweed suits, will be seen much. The trousers will be medium, with perhaps a little flare at the bottom. Cuffs continue to come back into style, although the trousers will still be worn cut-offs.

Vests will button real high with the tweed suits, while they will be moderate with suits of dark material. Thefad of having them cut-out low seems to have passed.

Last year's styles in overcoats, a radical change at that time over the previous year, will be seen all over this year. The sensible ones will be noticed in all the coat centers. Raglan effects, wide belts, broad shoulders, added by heavy, blanket-like material, will make overcoats both good to look at, and comfortable in the coldest weather. Materials are of all colors and combinations. It is the lines that will count with overcoats.

Lighter Hats in Vogue.

The majority of hats to be worn this winter will be of light shades and brown and gray, with brown predominating. The material is fuzzy-soft like felt, while the hats will be numerous. Individuality is expressed more in hats, perhaps, than in any other article of clothing, especially with the younger men, each one attempting a distinctive crease.

Caps to be worn are the same fuzzy-looking, small-creased affairs, made in eight pieces, with a button on top. The colors are light shades of tan and gray, with tweed material worn with a small knot. Tie-knotted caps continue popular, in shades of blue and gray. Attached collars seem to have come into style to stay. In the silks for shirts, plain colors are worn more than stripes or designs, although the latter are proper. Grays and blues are predominant. White is always a good form and the number of white shirts sold by local clothiers probably equals those of any color. The crepe shirts with wrinkled effects which necessitate no ironing, no starching are seen in a variety of light shades—peach, blue and gray. Attached collars on these are also popular.

Knitted Ties Still Popular.

Knitted ties and narrow, bright-striped silk ties are about the only ones that will be worn extensively. Many still prefer the wide four-inch hand ties, which now, however, have a small knot. Tie manufacturers make a variety of knitted ties alone so that one could wear them and no other kind without monotony. Black is still the predominating color, except in the silks mentioned, where the brightest colors are worn.

Collars are as low as ever, both in the soft and stiff manner. The semi-stiff collars come out in still more variety of shapes and they can not be found to suit any taste.

Socks never seem to change, and when they do, plain black silk socks will continue to be worn. A white clock is in good form.

Variety in Shoes

More variety is offered in shoes than in any other article of clothing this season. All kinds are in good form—brogues, plain toes, brown and black—unless they must all be Oxford and saddle decisions. The only kind popular are the long, narrow, pointed "English" shoes. Sensible lasts are predominant and the wide-square-toed oxford, in black or brown, will be worn as much as any other kind. Moderate brogue effects in shoes will also be in style.

Prices on clothes remain about the same, slightly higher, if anything. The advancing price of wool will have an effect on the new fall suits, which will be higher-priced than those of last spring and a year ago. However an excellent suit can be obtained for a moderate price.

Watertown Fair to Open Sept. 19

Watertown—The Watertown Inter-County fair will open Tuesday, Sept. 19, and will continue four days.

LAS HURDES "WILD WEST" OF SPAIN

Large Province Really Remote Region, Says Society Bulletin.

The widely advertised, much-eussed and sky scraping hiccups, living which American politicians promise to send down into the depths of oblivion every time the "dear people" insist that they run for congress, has nothing on the H. C. of brides, in Zuñia Island.

American wives have been in the habit of going up in the air, for years, particularly when friend husband's pocketbook wouldn't stand for a new home or director's meeting.

The order went into effect Saturday, the 26th, both the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Chicago and Northern railroad.

Seventeen men at the pits of the Janesville Sand and Gravel company were laid off indefinitely, Saturday, J. K. Jensen, president of the company, said.

"We do not know from one day to the next what will happen. In transcription of sand and gravel, we are uncertain. We have loaded a few cars and will be able to load a few more but it is problematical as to how long present conditions

PRIORITY ORDER HITS GRAVEL PITS

Tie-Up of Construction Looms With Failure of Gravel Companies to Get Cars.

A general tie-up of construction is expected as a result of the priority order seizing gondola cars for shipments and necessitating a shut-down of gravel pits in Janesville and surrounding points.

The order went into effect Saturday, the 26th, both the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Chicago and Northern railroad.

"We do not know from one day to the next what will happen. In transcription of sand and gravel, we are uncertain. We have loaded a few cars and will be able to load a few more but it is problematical as to how long present conditions will last. We will probably be able to get a few cars from time to time."

Practically the same conditions exist at pits of other companies here. The company is shut down. According to G. Olson, manager, his company has been receiving an average of but 10 cars a week since July 1. The usual number of cars used by the Tractor City concern is 125 weekly.

Notice was received, Friday, by Mr. Olson from the C. M. and St. Paul railroad stating that cars would be at the disposal of the company on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of last week, but this was reversed when all cars were ordered to the coal fields.

FLAYS LIQUOR AS SOURCE OF CRIME

Eliminate Booze for 10 Years and Crime Will Drop, Declares Fenton.

Eliminate booze for 10 years and crime will be lessened greatly, according to R. W. (Ruzer) Fenton, reformed "King of Pickpockets," who told his life story and conversion before a packed house at the local Baptist church, Sunday night. Fenton rapped universities that do not teach the bible, saying their attitude of there being no life beyond the grave breeds criminals. He ridiculed social workers who try to teach and save the Christ, adding the trouble with the Devil is not in his brain but his heart. He declared newspaper notoriety on crime lessens wrongdoing by warning the underworld the police are active. Fenton went to Monroe where he speaks Monday.

Funeral services for Miss Julia Clark were held at the home at 2:30 p.m. with the Rev. Neil Hanson of the Congregational church officiating. Interment was in the local cemetery.

Trestles Arrive for No. 10 Bridge

Steel trestles were delivered for the span on the bridge at Happy Hollow on the Janesville-Beloit concrete road, Monday. The bridge was washed out in the torrent of rain which destroyed three Rock county bridges this spring.

Progress on the Happy Hollow bridge has been slow, due partly to the time required for the concrete abutments to set.

It is hoped to have the bridge completed in another 10 days. The distance between the abutments is 40 feet.

Trade School Has Big Enrollment

Interest in the opportunities offered at the vocational school has been so great that the number enrolling for classes in the commercial department has taxed the facilities available. There is still room for additional pupils in the home arts department and it is expected that a number of young women and possibly some older who desire training in either dressmaking or cooking will enroll during the next week. Director J. M. Dorans has not fully tabulated the enrollment, but says it exceeds that of a year ago.

HARVEST MOON IS UNUSUALLY BRIGHT

Janesville residents have been delighted the past week by the presence of a harvest moon resulting in beautiful moonlight evenings. They are expected to continue three more nights.

The unusual brilliancy of the moon is explained by it being nearest to the autumn equinox.

The moon's path being least inclined to the horizon, it rises right after night with slight retardation, resulting in a comparatively long succession of moonlit evenings.

Send every energy to finish the high school building so it may be used before the end of 1922. With the completion of the problem of a community center will be solved JANESEVILLE needs and should have ample hotel facilities to care for the public. That will be true when the high school is completed and the auditorium is available for the largest conventions.

Finish the paving of JANESEVILLE streets as soon as possible. Make the necessary readjustments in taxation so as not to place a heavy burden on the people.

Give the city a park. There is now available $10,000 for this purpose and it should not be used for any other. Finish the city and zoning plans.

FARM SATISFACTION AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS

This is a moving, wandering population. It is one of the reasons for the fast growth of the nation, the tremendous national impetus and the widespread separation of families. We began it early. Had it not been so, we would have waited long for the settlement of Rock county. Pioneers came from the east and settled here. Others grew tired in a few years and went on farther. Children grew up and went away. It is hard to find a family that is without immediate relatives in many sections far removed. In families it is true, that

The blue eggs in the robins' nest
Will soon have wing and beak and breast
And flutter and fly away.

But there is less and less call for this migration than in the past. One place is very like another. One town's moving picture shows, the clothing worn, the food at the restaurant or in the home, the costumes of the women, the contour of the buildings, the streets and the automobiles, the lights and the shade, the railroad station and the ice cream parlors, might all have been made or built after one general plan. The farms look very much alike—there is a sign here of great improvement—homes are better, barns are larger, machinery is of the late efficient type, fields are better cultivated and the people have more comforts by many per cents than in the days of long ago. One place has shown little change and that is in the old school house. It looks about the same as it did in '64. It has the same general outside appearance, the same entrance, the blackboard is where it used to be and teacher's desk occupies the same old spot with the hooks for the clothes and the stove with its long stretch of pipe just as forbidding and as wobbly as ever.

There are better books, more apparatus, more things to interest the children, a wider opportunity to know and hear of the things worth while in the world, and in many schools the seats are far more comfortable than the carpenter-made benches of yore.

So when the wings come and there is more to learn—wider and broader fields in the grades and high school—the boys and girls are taken to town where advantages are greater. Parents loath to lose the offspring at the early age, sell the farm, or rent it and move to town. We add another to the tenant farms or reduce the rural population again. In most cases the first reason for young people departing from rural communities is given as a desire for a better education than is furnished in the district schools. And once gone away the boys and girls do not return. Absence of a community center has something to do with the removal, the motor cars and good roads, the fascination of town or city life, and the opportunity for "white collar" employment also contributes something having to do with moving from the country, but the most emphasized reason, according to the Survey, is the rural school and its deficiencies.

It is laudable that parents want their children to have larger educational advantages and that they should not be given a loss opportunity than can be found in the cities. If the children could be given those advantages, if the schools were equal to the demand made, if education was not considered a sort of thing beyond rural communities, it is believed that there would be greater satisfaction in the farm, more general appreciation of rural life and a lessened desire to get away. This has become a serious problem in many communities. It has been met by community centers, consolidated schools and junior high schools which in themselves have become community centers. But it is up to every community to say how far the public schools will be bettered and become an asset for the preservation of farm ownership and a continuation of agriculture as a business.

A Chilean's election to the presidency of the League of Nations assembly hasn't reduced Great Britain's voting power noticeably.

It seldom happens that a justice of the supreme court of the United States resigns except for physical disability. Therefore the resignation of Justice John M. Clarke, of Ohio, a democrat appointed by President Wilson, is worth more than passing comment. He will enter upon some effort to make the United States accept the League of Nations. It is a task which, as he is 65 now, will probably require all the time he has on earth allotted to him, and keep him well occupied. His successor, George Sutherland, for 12 years a senator of Utah, was one of the closest and warmest friends of Mr. Harding when the president was in the senate. THE REAL TREASURES.
I fancy when the game is done, and all the petty strife is through,
The little prizes we have won, the deeds we tried so hard to do
Will seem trivial, after all; and looking back across the way,
The best of life that we'll recall will be some happy yesterday.

The goals we've reached will lose their glow, the things we've done will seem to fade.
The richest treasures we shall know will be the friendships we have made;
Though now we strive for place or gain, and find them difficult to win,
When once those treasures we obtain, some other struggle we'll begin.

Not long will gold retain its glow, the silver cup is tarnished soon.
We weary of the goals we know as children reaching for the moon;
We seek the charm which lies afar, from what is done we turn anew.

Thinking that most important are the selfish deeds we hope to do.
And yet I fancy at the close, when memory turns the pages over.

The brighter pictures will be those of pleasure we had beside our door—
The old contentment which we knew, the children, dogs and games we played;
And, brightening all life's story through, will be the friends that we have made.

RURAL DELIGHTS.
I long for the bubble pleasures.
The rural delights and the charm.
I love to go on a vacation.
And visit the dear old farm.

Where living is elemental.
And everything is so "cheap."

Where money's an incidental.
The thought of it makes me weep.

Alas for the city bank roll.
That hits a tall grass resort.

It easily slips away from
Its rubber-band escort.

Sing ho! for the open country.
Where Nature is grand—not free.

I hope to frequent for the city.
A week was enough for me.

We shall always consider that Uncle Julius Caesar, who wrote the calendar, made a serious mistake in putting the two hottest months in the summer, when we don't really need them.

He liked the limelight. It was his sole ambition to be in the public's eye.

It was hard going for him. He heard the call of the stage, but was round wanting.

He was not possessed of eloquent powers. So he had to pass up politics.

Various methods of publicity chasing were tried. But at last he reached his goal. The public can now gaze on him and his audience is larger. He is satisfied. How? Why? He accepted a job in a restaurant as a "laptop" cook engineer.

WHATEVER WE DO WITH—

The poor fish who tells you to cure your headache by forgetting about it?

The woman who has been thirty-seven years old even since you can remember?

The guy who, upon being introduced to you, grasps your hand with unnecessary vigor and stares fixedly into your eyes?

The boy who thinks they keep a sextant aboard ship in case any old dies?

The bird who eats every piece of stationary that comes into his hands to see if it's edible.

Who's Who Today

LADY NANCY ASTOR.

Born in America and proud of it is Lady Nancy Astor, member of the British parliament and one of England's most brilliant women, who came to her homeland recently as delegates to the Pan-American conference of the National League of Women Voters at Boston.

Lady Astor was Nancy Witcher Langhorne. Her family is referred to as the southern society as "the Langhorns of Virginia."

Nancy and her four sisters became known as "the five beautiful Langhorne girls."

Lady Nancy became a leading figure in southern society.

Her first marital adventure—an American romance, ended in the divorce court. She married Robert Gould Shaw, of Boston, in 1897 and six years later abandoned her freedom.

When Nancy became betrothed to Viscount Astor, it is said her fiance's father opposed the match, but finally accepted his daughter-in-law when she became bold enough to write directly to him on the matter.

When Viscount Astor sought a seat in the house of commons in 1910 Lady Nancy took the stump in his behalf. He lost the election, whereupon Lady Nancy remarked quictly, "I guess I'll have to win that seat myself." Her husband was raised to the peerage in 1919 and automatically entered the house of lords. Then Lady Nancy made good her threat.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FOURTY YEARS AGO

Sept. 11, 1882.—The Rock County Prohibition convention assembled here this morning. Among the leaders in the county association are J. B. Dow, Beloit; D. L. Clegg, G. W. Lawrence, J. J. Holmes and John Stockman.—Part of the home of Daniel Stone on Jackman street east of the high school building, was destroyed by fire last night.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

Sept. 11, 1892.—Ollie Skinner will be seen at the Myers house Monday night in Lazarre. This production will be especially interesting in view of the fact that one of the scenes represents the Indian reservation near Green Bay.—The new city directory contains 7,000 names, while Beloit has 5,000.

TEN YEARS AGO

Sept. 11, 1912.—Four hundred ten pupils are enrolled in the high school. The building was fumigated yesterday because of the case of infantile paralysis which one high school girl has, but the attendance today was decreased, but little because of that fact.—Thirteen citizens in charge of the finances of the hospital will meet tonight.

THE WAY TO FREEDOM

TONSILS AND TUBERCULOSIS

The condition, still fairly common in children, formerly called "scarfie" but now known to doctors as tuberculous cervical adenitis, which porous words means tuberculosis of the lymph-nodes or "knots" in the neck, is directly into the jugular vein and thence into the right side of the heart and the lungs. So if tubercle bacilli thus enter the circulation they are pretty sure to lodge in the lungs. But this is a very rare happening, notwithstanding the frequency of tuberculosis of the neck "glands." In fact it has been observed that in families having several members with lung tuberculosis every adenitis acquire a certain immunity and do not have lung tuberculosis.

MONDAY, SEPT. 11, 1922.

Neptune is in evil place during the hours of business this day, according to astrology. In the evening the sun is in benevolent aspect.

The judgment should not be trusted while this configuration prevails, for the most sanguine hopes are likely to be raised.

Some sort of unusual excitement concerning new oil fields again is prognosticated and double-dealing is forecast.

This is a sign making for general confusion in the national thought and this will affect the election.

Much misguidance in the shape of political propaganda is presaged by the stars, which will look down on many astonished men and women when the votes are counted this autumn.

The evening is a most favorable time for persons who have power and personality to present their claims for any sort of rewards.

After sundown entertainments in honor of distinguished guests are well directed and should bring satisfactory results.

When the Sun enters Libra for the next quarter Neptune will be in a position causing unusual frauds that affect states as well as private companies.

During this month many libel suits will develop and there will be much unkindly feeling generated, owing to the malefic power of the planet that is supposed to rule the seas.

Again a grave marriage scandal in which a high public official is concerned seems to be foreshadowed by the stars.

Italy is to suffer from the position of Neptune in Leo and there seems to be a threatening sign for the Pope.

It is again and again forecast by the seers that the world is to enter another terrible conflict. This will involve the United States.

Q. Will an electric motor run in a vacuum? T. R. B.

A. An electric motor will run in a vacuum, with increased heating for the same output, or with less current, depending on the motor.

Q. Did Caesar really say "Et tu, Brute?" when he was assassinated? E. A.

A. The words meaning "and thou, Brutus," were supposed to have been uttered by Caesar when he was stabbed by Brutus, but there is no absolute authority for attributing this utterance to Caesar and it is probable that the popular impression is due to the use of the words by Shakespeare in his famous play.

Q. Will an electric motor run in a vacuum? T. R. B.

A. An electric motor will run in a vacuum, with increased heating for the same output, or with less current, depending on the motor.

Q. Is any method or plan followed in the International Sunday School lesson? G. H. H.

A. The lessons are arranged so that the Bible will be reviewed each six years. This period constitutes the time that the average child attends Sunday School. One temperature lesson is included quarterly.

The Cross-Cut

A Serial Story of the Colorado Mines

By Courtney Ryley Cooper

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

SYNOPSIS.
When Thornton Fairchild died he left his son Robert, a mine in Colorado, and a secret which solved some sinister mystery. Robert goes to the mine, meets with many adventures and a girl who is the daughter of his late friend, Judge Richmond. Robert also meets his old partner Harry Baskin. Both stop at the boarding house of Mother Howard, a friend of Thornton Fairchild. The man begins to work the mine with what few men dare do there. In an inner chamber they find the dead body of one of the men who worked with the son Fairchild. The skeleton shows the skull was cut. Robert's mother conjectures that father did not kill the man. A blast has closed the mine and concealed this chamber for years. Mrs. Martins and Fairchild pull a black toad to discover if there is a silver vein.

Had it been any one else, Fairchild would have shouted for happiness and joined the parade. As it was, he stood far to one side, a silent, grim figure, watching the march go by with impassioned eyes, leaning about him like a hermit, calling to him the names that he did not want to hear.

The Silver Queen had "hit." The faith of Saint Rosalie, maintained through the years, had shown his perspicacity. It was there; he always had said it was there; and now, the strike had been made! Last lead-silver ore, running as high as two hundred dollars a ton. It meant that every man in Old Town meant that mining would boom now, that soon the hills would be clustered with prospectors, and that the little town would blossom as a result of possessing one of the rich silver mines of the state.

Fairchild felt cheap. He felt defeated. He felt small and mean not to be able to join the celebration. Saint and Maurice Rodaine possessed the Silver Queen; that they, of all persons, should be the fortunate ones was bitter and hard to accept. Why should they be? They had been lucky to find a silver bonanza, that they might flaunt it before him, that they might increase their standing in the community, that they might raise themselves to a pedestal in the eyes of every one and thereby rally about them the whole town in any difficulty which might arise in the future? It hurt Fairchild, it sickened him. He saw now that his enemies were more powerful than he. And for a moment he almost wished that he had yielded down there in Denver, that he had given over the ultimatum to the greasy Barnham, that he had accepted the offer made him—and gone on, out of the fight forever.

Anita! What would it mean to her? Already enraged, already having given her answer to Maurice Rodaine, this now would be an added incentive for her to follow her promise. It would mean a possibility of a separation with him, and already too weak from illness had the means of exacting his initiation plans of the two men who had taken his money and made him virtually their slave. Their future looked black for Robert Fairchild. Slowly he walked past the happy, shouting crowd and turned up Kentucky Gulch toward the ill-fated Blue Poppy.

The tunnel opening looked more forlorn than ever. He sighted it—a bleak, desolate single rock which somehow brooked over its own mysterious, a dead, hopeless thing which never had brought anything but disappointment. A chocking came into Fairchild's throat. He entered the tunnel slowly, ploddingly, with jangling muscles he hauled up the bucket which told of Harry's presence below, then slowly lowered him into the recesses of the shaft, and then the drift leading to the stone where only for days before they had found that grim, whitened, haunting thing which had brought with it a new misfortune.

A light gleamed ahead, and the sound of a single jack hammering on the end of a drill could be heard. Fairchild ascended and went forward, to find Harry, grimy and sweating, pounding away at a narrow streak of black formation which centered in the top of the stone.

"It's the vein," he announced, after he had greeted Fairchild, "and it doesn't look like it's going to amount to much."

Harry withdrew the drill from the hole he was making and mopped his forehead.

"It ain't a world-beater," came disconsolately. "I doubt whether I'll run more twenty dollars to the ton. The wye smelting price have gone up. And there a man's mind may be in that. What happened in Denver?"

"Another frame-up by the Rodaines to get the vein away from us. It was clever. We stalled that the offer had been made to us by Miss Rich mond."

"How much?"

"Two hundred thousand dollars and us to get out of all the troubles we are in."

"And you took it, of course?"

"No?" Harry mopped his forehead again. "Well, maybe you're right. Whatever you did—well, that's just the thing I would've done. Only—and Harry was staring lugubriously at the vein above him, "It's going to take us a long time to get two hundred thousand dollars out of things the wye they stand now."

"But we're going to 'keep at it' Harry, sink or swim."

"You know it!"

"The Rodaines have hit—maybe we can have some good luck too."

"The Rodaines?" Harry stared.

"We? What?"

"Two hundred dollars a ton ore!"

A long whistle. Then Harry, who had been balancing a single jack preparatory to going back to his work, threw it aside, and began to roll down his sleeves.

"We're going to 'ave a look at it."

"A look? What good would it?"

WITCH CHARM AND PIRATE LOOT FOR LITTLE FRIENDLY FOLKS WHO LIKE ADVENTURES

Illustration of a witch and a pirate.

Ned and Ted had just finished eating a most delicious fish chowder, which they had made on the shore of the lake, and were leaning back against the embankment, altogether too full for prancing about. Ned was idly tossing pebbles at the now empty chowder kettle when he paused and examined a small flint he had picked up. "That's strange," he said. "Here's a little stone with such queer shape that you would almost believe some man made it."
